Happy Campers at Bat

The Happy Campers had a skillful baseball team. Their trainer had trained them well. Emma was the pitcher. She had a good arm for throwing. The catcher was Megan. She was great at getting runners out at home plate. The team gladly played every day so they would be the best.

Today was the last game of the summer. If the Happy Campers won, they would be champs. Many visitors were there to watch. They cheered loudly.

It was the last inning. There were two outs. The pitcher threw a fastball. Megan bravely swung the bat. She missed!

Megan sadly walked to the bench. She thought her friends would be upset. But good friends are helpful to each other. The players gathered around her.

"It's all right," said Emma sweetly. "We know you did the best you could. We are still hopeful. Maybe next year we'll be the champs." Megan felt better.
